Violet Perfume and How It Is Made

VIOLET perfume still holds its own among many newcomers with the dainty woman, and, as its preparation is so simple and the apparatus neither complex nor expensive, women of the present day might find violet perfume making at home interesting if they but knew how to do it.

The volatile or essential oils of the violet can be secured in several ways. The simplest method, however, is to place the flowers—with a little stalk as possible—in a wide mouthed bottle or jar three-quarters full of the best olive oil, then stretch a bladder over the top and tie it securely.

After the flowers have been in the oil for twenty-four hours take them out, place them in a coarse linen cloth and squeeze the oil from them, pouring the oil obtained back in the bottle. Repeat this process with fresh flowers until the perfume is of the desired strength.

After the perfumed oil has been secured it must be dissolved with spirits. The alcohol used in making perfumes must be selected with care, and the safest way is to buy the regular "cologne spirits." As a rule, there should be used about half as much alcohol as there is oil. It is an easy matter to tell when enough alcohol has been used, as the mixture will have a white or clouded appearance as long as the oil is undissolved, but will be perfectly clear when the oil is entirely dissolved. Never throw away the cloths used in the processes, but place them in a jar of alcohol, leaving them there until the oil that is in them has been digested. The bottles containing the volatile oils must be blackened or wrapped in black paper and kept in a dark place until ready for putting in the alcohol if it is not convenient to use them at once. All essences must be kept in tightly stoppered bottles.

THE SEWER GAS BUGABOO

After complicating our plumbing systems with traps and more traps and vents and back-air pipes, we find at last that the air of sewers does not cause disease, as we were taught, or, if it does so at all, that the chance of its causing disease is so small as to be almost negligible. Miquel found that the air of the Paris sewers contained fewer bacteria than the air over the Paris streets; long experience has shown that the workmen in sewers do not contract the diseases that one might expect them to contract. Winslow has calculated that a person breathing air all night from a house drain would inhale fewer bacteria of intestinal origin than he would swallow with a glass of Croton water from a tap in New York city.

This idea certainly seems revolutionary, and we must be careful not to go to the other extreme. It would not do to do away with all traps and similar fixtures intended to prevent the air of the sewers from entering our houses. Sanitation ought to make for our comfort as well as for our health, and bacterial infection is not all there is to the causation of disease. Besides, it is just possible that our latest discoveries are not without flaw. Nevertheless, considering all of the facts in their quantitative aspect, it does seem that a good case has been made against the unnecessary complexity of our house plumbing systems, and it would appear to be wise economy to simplify their design and improve the quality of the materials and the workmanship. Already in England a royal commission, after making an extensive investigation, has recommended that the trap on the main drain from the house to the sewer be no longer required. In Germany these traps have never been much used.—George C. Whipple, in Atlantic Magazine.

POLICE STINGS

E. B. Johnson, a conductor with the Rapid Transit Company, who received scalp injuries while diving off the rocks near the public baths, while still at the hospital is reported as rapidly recovering.

Today James H. Wiley, declared to have been a colored soldier and believed wanted upon a charge of desertion, has been lodged at central police station pending a further investigation of the case by Sheriff Charles Rose.

Confronted by a colored man at an unfrequented portion of the Iwilei road shortly before midnight, Takai, a Japanese, has alleged to the police that he was forced to turn over all cash in his possession before being permitted to make his escape.

In a raid of Japanese and Chinese gamblers who were engaged in woking fickle fortune at a Smith street resort, Captain of Detectives McDuffie and a party of officers placed six men under arrest, who this morning were found guilty and assessed $5, the magistrate remitting costs.

Kalalani, a trusty employed at the central police station who figured in injuries with the overturning of the police patrol near the corner of King and Keamoku street on Tuesday afternoon has been discharged from Queen's hospital where the man was sent for treatment for a serious cut on his leg.

Pending the recovery of Porifano Stipahany, a Russian, who received a number of wounds in the abdomen alleged to have been inflicted by John Riviera, a Porto Rican at Camp No. 2, several nights ago, the hearing of the case in which Riviera is charged with assault with a weapon has been postponed at district court. The defendant was arraigned this morning, the matter going over until July 25. At liberty for 48 hours, Riviera was found in hiding at Camp No. 3 by officers from Captain of Detective McDuffie's department. The detectives also secured three witnesses to the affair.

WORLD CONTEST IN EGG LAYING AT EXPOSITION

[By Latest Mail]
SAN FRANCISCO.—An international egg-laying contest, which will begin on Nov. 1, 1914, and continue for 12 months, is planned by P. O. Lively, chief of the department of livestock in connection with the Panama-Pacific International exposition. The contest will be under the supervision of the poultry division of the college of agriculture of the University of California, according to the Examiner.

The contesting pens will each be composed of 10 hens of the same variety. The birds must be at least eight months old and not more than 11 months old on the opening day of the contest. All birds will be housed and fed alike. The competition will be open to the world.

October 15, 1914, has been set as the date when the entries close, and all birds will have to reach the grounds of the department of livestock of the exposition not later than Oct. 30, 1914.

Fort Shafter Notes

[Special Star-Bulletin Correspondence]
FORT SHAFTER, July 23.—The sudden death of Private William P. Cornwell, Company C, 2d Infantry, that occurred some time in the night of July 13, has been made the subject of an investigation by a board of officers that was convened by orders from post headquarters and the report of that board has now been submitted. On the morning of July 14 the department hospital was notified that Private Cornwell had been found dead in bed. Captain Foucar, the surgeon on duty, made an immediate visit to the barracks and upon arrival there found the soldier's body already stiffening in death. The officer in the opinion expressed to the board was convinced that death had occurred some six or eight hours previous to the time when the body was discovered. The board interrogated a number of witnesses as to any circumstances that might shed light on the cause of the man's demise. Most of those examined were company comrades of Cornwell and testified that the deceased was a periodical drinker and that he had been known to drink bay rum as well as other methyl preparations. Cornwell had been in charge of the company barber shop for some time previous to the date of his death and had done some work for men of his company on the 13th. One of these stated that on that day the barber had taken bay rum as a drink and a number of men were positive that he had been well under the influence of an intoxicant on the day in question. When the body was discovered it was in a distorted attitude as if the death had been more or less violent. A careful examination of all available circumstances failed to reveal any evidence of self destruction. This view was supported by the result of the autopsy that was performed by the surgeons at the department hospital. From a consideration of the evidence adduced from the witnesses called before it and with the results of the autopsy before it, the board was of opinion that the soldier's death was caused by methyl alcohol poisoning and that chronic alcoholism was established.

An important decision relative to the enlisted man making good time lost from duty through temporary disability due to the soldier's own misconduct has been received and is as follows: "Reference Army appropriation act approved April 27, 1914, proviso relative making good time lost on account of disease resulting from misconduct has application only to enlistments entered into on or subsequent to above mentioned date and does not affect enlistments entered into prior thereto except as to unauthorized absence in excess one day. As to latter, act is put repetition former legislation." (Telegram. The A. G. O., July 18, 1914.)

A quantity of steel wall lockers for the permanent barracks has been received at the post and turned over to the companies of the third battalion for installation. The lockers are to be supplied only to the companies that have permanent quarters and therefore the organizations living in cantonment will have to make shift without that class of useful equipment. The number reserved brings the total lockers on hand in each company up to 150 or sufficient for the war strength command.

Captains C. S. Linsell, James E. Bell and E. H. Cooke have been designated by Colonel French as inspectors-instructors for duty with the battalions of the National Guard during the approaching joint encampment of that body and the 2d Infantry. Captain Cooke will do double duty since he is a Manchukuo and not available for detached service.

MAUI NEWS

[Special Star-Bulletin Correspondence]
WAILUKU, Maui, July 22.—Maui, teacher's cottage is to be built at Kea-hua, and Punene school, which has been crowded the last few years, is to have a four-room addition. The Maui board of supervisors expect bids in by August 18 for the above improvements in school property.

A new room for Nahiku school and a teacher's cottage at Sprecklesville are much needed and plans for these have been called for.

The parsonage of the Kauhuanu church at Wailuku was thoroughly repaired and considerably enlarged previous to the conference just closed at Wailuku. Electric lights were installed. The cottage now with its green and white paint presents a very attractive appearance.

Maui supervisors appropriated $450 for the building of a piece of road on the island of Lanai.

FOUR MILLION CANTALOUPE IS DAY'S SHIPMENT

[By Latest Mail]
LOS ANGELES.—Breaking the world's record for the shipments of melons, the Imperial valley growers and Southern Pacific freight department on a recent day loaded and shipped from the valley 4,179,600 cantaloupes in 258 iced cars eastbound to Chicago and other eastern cities. This is the news which President William Sproule and Vice-president W. R. Scott of the railroad disseminated through the Los Angeles Tribune. Accompanied by President Paul Shoup of the Pacific electric system, Julius Kruttschnitt, chairman of the board of directors of the Southern Pacific road, and others, the two made an inspection of the cantaloupe handling facilities in the valley. Mr. Scott said, "The crop seems

DOYLE PLACED ON STAND IN OWN DEFENSE

Following the calling and examination of three witnesses, all of whom are local residents, the government this morning rested its case in the trial of Joseph A. Doyle in the federal court. Doyle was the first witness to be called by the defense, and it is probable that he will be on the stand until court adjourns at 4 o'clock this afternoon. Rumors were rife today that the case would go to the jury late this afternoon, but were denied by counsel for the defense, who stated that there are two more witnesses whom he will call.

J. O. Dominis, a clerk in the circuit court, was on the witness stand this morning by the prosecution to identify certain documents setting forth the divorce proceedings between the present Mrs. Doyle and her former husband, School. Other witnesses called by the prosecution were Bert Lloyd and J. M. Rogers. The former was called upon to testify regarding a certain altercation in the hotel conducted by the defendant, wherein it is alleged Doyle became jealous of attentions which it is said were paid to Mrs. Doyle No. 2 by a man whose name was given as Allen.

Charles Sleeper and the cook at the hotel conducted by Doyle were called as witnesses by the defense. When the government rested its case, and Doyle took to the stand, Mrs. Edna Ferguson, better known as Mrs. Doyle No. 2, took a seat directly back of and close to the district attorney and his assistant, following closely the statements made by the witness. No "sting" starting was brought out in the testimony.

F. E. DAVIS SUES FOR COMMISSION ALLEGED DUE FROM COAST FIRM

Suit was filed this week by F. E. Davis of F. E. Davis & Co. against the Illinois-Pacific Glass Company for $6532.50. Mr. Davis alleges that this sum is due him as commission for handling the glass company's business here since the fall of 1912.

It is alleged in the papers that the local company was to become agent at a five per cent commission and the plaintiff states that the contract is still binding. Some 20 corporations doing business in the territory are named as garnishes in the suit which follows an action to recover $1400, instituted by the Illinois-Pacific Glass Company.

TANGO IN JAIL PROVES MENACE TO HOME OF RESIDENT OF ALAMEDA

[By Latest Mail]
SAN FRANCISCO.—Katsuri Takahachi is a good subject of the Mikado's and as such is opposed to such modern and extremely Occidental innovations as the Argentine tango and the maxixe and has asked Sheriff Frank Barnett to put a stop to the impromptu dance-fests which are held in the Alameda County Jail nightly.

Takahachi lives at Fourth and Clay streets, Oakland, across the street from the jail. He declares that the noise of the dancing prisoners keeps him awake, and also expresses his fear that his children may be cursed with the tango craze. His letter follows:

"Mr. Sheriff Barnette, Hon. Sir: I want to have you request if possible by force the playing of a graphophone that makes bunny hugs and tangos in the night through the window going into my rooms. These teach children the tango dances and the maxixes. They dance despite my earnest parental remonstrance, thus causing me much discommodation. Therefore I respectfully hope that you will issue Hon. Injunction and prevent further occurrence of such sleepless and dance instruction outrages and inconvenience. Humbly, Most Hon. Mr. I remain yours, certain to reach 4500 carloads this year, which of course is the greatest in history. Last year was a big year with about 3200 cars. There will be more than 500 cars of watermelons, too."

POLITICAL NOTES

Willie Crawford has formally announced his candidacy for representative from the fifth district. He is running as a Republican.

Andrew Cox is expected soon to announce himself as a candidate for reelection as supervisor. He will, of course, run as a Republican.

William Henry is said to be making an effective campaign for the Republican nomination for sheriff. He is declared to have strong backing in Honolulu and several outside districts.

J. P. Cooke in a published interview sets at rest any rumors that he might be supporting George R. Carter. He says he is a Republican and will vote as one at the primaries and the November election.

Ed Woodward was reported last night as a probable competitor of James Hicknell for county auditor, but another report says that Woodward has definitely stated he would not run. He has been clerk of the house for several sessions and made an unusually good record there.
